The Bank of England, the centre of the world's financial business, was erected in 1788-1800 to designs by Sir J. Soane, in a Corinthian style of architecture. The Royal Exchange is the third building on this site, the first two having been destroyed by fire. The present building, by Tite, was opened in 1844. The Mansion House, the official residence of the Lord Mayor of London, was erected in 1739-53, from designs by George Dance the elder.
